

We offer excursions focusing on botanical spots in Iceland. The excursions feature the flora and unique ecology of Iceland.

Botanical tours in Iceland allow you a taste of the very best Icelandic nature has to offer, including our diverse flora and fauna and scenic landscapes.

While the summer is the primetime for flowering plants, we now also offer a seasonal woodland tour for you to explore plant life in winter.

The tours include light to moderate level hiking. Stops are usually made for sandwiches but you can also bring your own picnic lunch. Always, wear practical outdoor clothing, hiking boots and bring a rain coat.

Thund

Thund is a nature tour and consulting company where scientific expertise is applied to the study of ecosystems. The company specialises in biological communities, especially vegetation and associated fauna. Ongoing nature tours and projects centre on both natural and manmade environment, using ecological data and knowledge, while supporting the sustainable use and restoration of ecological communities. Thund provides biodiversity, conservation, natural resource management and gardening advice. We strive to ensure that our clients receive the most professional service possible. Our main speciality is the assessment of biological communities, especially vegetation and associated insect fauna.
